

Civic Education Networks

#	Name	Link	Notes
1	Eastern European Network for Citizenship Education (EENCE)	www.eence.eu	EENCE is a Network of organizations and experts aiming at promoting exchange and development of knowledge, skills and values on citizenship education in the region of Eastern Europe. EPF is an observing member for the network.
2	EuroClio	www.euroclio.eu	EuroClio aims to inspire and support educators to engage their students in innovative and responsible history and citizenship education. We conduct research to assess the needs of those teaching and learning history, heritage and citizenship, using surveys, focus-groups and interviews. The research findings drive the work of the Association and are used as evidence for advocacy and fundraising
3	CIVICUS	www.civicus.org	CIVICUS is a worldwide community of informed, inspiring and committed organizations and individuals working together. CIVICUS connects a diversity of members and partners dedicated to defending civic freedoms and democratic values, strengthening the power of people to organize, mobilize and take action within and across borders, and empowering a more accountable, effective and innovative civil society. Together we are a growing community of over 8500 members from over 175 countries. Our overall goal is to strengthen civil society and citizen action for a more just, inclusive and sustainable world.
4	CIVNET	CIVNET.org	CIVNET.org is a worldwide online civic education community of educators, scholars, policymakers, civic-minded journalists, NGO's, and other individuals promoting civic education around the globe. CIVNET was developed to raise the profile of civic education, promote civic education on the agendas of government policymakers throughout the world, enrich the debate on teaching methodology, establish teacher-training programs, create and distribute civics lesson plans, syllabi, curricula, textbooks, and teaching materials, and enable civic education practitioners to network and share information, ideas, and resources.

5	Council of Europe's group on Education for Democratic Citizenship and Human Rights (EDC/HRE)	www.coe.int/en/web/edc	The Council of Europe's group on Education for Democratic Citizenship and Human Rights (EDC/HRE) aims to give people the knowledge, understanding, skills, and attitudes that will help them to play an effective role in their community. It shows people how to become informed about their rights, responsibilities, and duties. Their charter explains their purpose in greater detail. In addition to more detailed publications, they have also made available various leaflets and posters (visibility materials) on citizenship and human rights education, many of which are available in multiple languages.
6	National Civic Learning and Democratic Engagement Action Network	www.aacu.org	[more for US-based organizations but the example is interesting] Over sixty national organizations, local organizations, higher education institutions, scholars, practitioners, and philanthropists, the Civic Learning and Democratic Engagement Action Network
7	iCivics Educator Network	www.icivics.org	iCivics Educator Network is an energetic group of educational professionals who represent iCivics with outreach and training and, just as importantly, provide the organization with invaluable insights and guidance relating to the field, the profession, and the realities of the classroom. Network members serve for one calendar year. iCivics begins its annual formal search for educational professionals with a variety of talents, interests, and teaching histories representing a diversity of grade levels, geographic areas, and personal demographics in the fall. Recruitment begins in October of each year and ends the week after the National Council for the Social Studies annual conference. If you are interested in serving on the iCivics Educator Network or want more information, contact: EducatorNetwork@icivics.org
